

Become a Service Quality Director for The Camden Society (London)

The Camden Society (London) supports adults with a learning disability in their own home, at work and in their local community.

To build on the success of The Camden Society (London) over the past year, we are looking for a new Executive Director who has a lived experience of a learning disability.

£17,330.89 - £20,389.29 for working equal to 2 days a week

Being a Service Quality Director

As the Service Quality Director you will work with the Managing Director to run the company. You will check the quality of support The Camden Society (London) gives people with a learning disability. You will also help people with a learning disability to control The Camden Society (London) and have their voices heard.

About You

- As a person with a learning disability you will:
- Use what you know about having a learning disability to help others,
- Talk and listen to lots of different people,
- Tell the other directors what they do well and what they must do better,
- Make decisions and plans about The Camden Society (London)
