What people appreciate about me:

I am always the person to plan and book holidays with family and friends. I need to take control of the organisation of the holiday and people love me doing that.

People would say that I am approachable and often confide in me.

I am loyal to those that I am close to

I have been told that I am always there for people when they need help.

What is important to me:

My mum, sister, and twin nephews mean everything to me. They're my biggest support, and I can't imagine life without them.

On weekends, I love to travel and explore new places. I also binge-watch Netflix, especially psychological thrillers or true stories

I love my holidays abroad, anywhere its sunny. I'm sure I was born to live in flip flops.

How to support me:

If I am upset, please give me some space and I will speak to you about the problem when I'm ready.

If I am working on a project and I don't understand a written instruction, I will phone you to clarify rather than more emails back and forward.

Sometimes I need time away from the laptop if I have been doing a particular task for a while, my eyes get tired. I would usually get a coffee then return to the task.
